

Nunney is a village 20 miles south of Bath, near Frome on the edge of the Mendip Hills in Somerset. Mentioned in Domesday Book, Nunney has a history that goes back to Roman, Saxon and medieval times.

Today, the tourist attractions are the ruins of the French-style, moated Nunney Castle (1373), an historic church, country inn, tea room and ducks wandering the streets near the river. The village hall hosts the popular Acoustic Café, which offers monthly live music, poetry and art. Nunney has a sparkling community life, demonstrated by the award-winning Nunney Players, Open Gardens Day, Nunney Rocks, Flower Show and many other events.

Nunney was the subject of a BBC Radio 4 report on 30 September 2007, asking whether "the prettiest village in England" is a place where we can learn "how to mend our broken society".

"Small as it is, Nunney is seductive. Spend a few days among its architectural mix of medieval austerity and Georgian elegance, and the idea of Nunney as centre of the universe somehow seems less bizarre." Los Angeles Times

"Dominated by the turrets of Nunney Castle, the village lies on the edge of the Mendip Hills and retains the image of a rural idyll." The Times

About the 36th Annual Nunney Street Market and Fayre

A royal charter for a weekly market and annual fayre in Nunney was granted by King Henry III on 24 October 1260 to Henry de Montfort, the local lord of the manor.

Last year Nunney celebrated the 750th anniversary of the granting of its charter in style with a medieval banquet.

The modern-day fayre was re-established in 1975 and is now in its 36th year. A tried and tested success, it is a firm favourite with exhibitors and visitors alike.
